

Valve Industries

Nitronic 60 containing yield strength nearly twice that of 304 and 316 stainless steels are machined under critical dimensional properties. These components are assembled in ship propeller as they provide excellent high temperature oxidation resistance and low temperature impact. We also provide a wide range of highly precision components which are used in oil & gas industries

