

Concrete-Mixer

Italian IMER dared to think differently and created concrete mixers that do not look the same as concrete mixers made for decades. They made them silent, easy to clean, with free mixing angles and removable drums, and they used materials that are not traditionally associated with concrete mixers. The result was so good that IMER is well on track to set a new standard for free-flow mixers. Today, they are located at rental, construction and construction companies across Sweden.
