

Silica Gel

Silica gel is a “desiccant,” and because of this, it’s used to hold things dry. Silica gel is made from silicon dioxide — a compound naturally located in the sand — and has small particles which could soak up massive amounts of water.

