

Diaphragm Valve

One of the key advantages for a diaphragm valve is that it can be used for throttling purposes as it is bidirectional and hence it can also be used for on/off function. It is extremely clean and can be easily maintained. If there are any repairs that need to be made, then they can happen without interrupting the pipeline.

